

CASE STUDY A PERFECT FIT

Tired of typical London terrace houses with their narrow – and often dark – layouts, restaurateurs Matt and Marissa Hermer have made a great success of the open-plan living arrangement in their smart mews conversion in Chelsea. Working with their close friend and designer Martin Brudnizki, they chose to make the whole ground floor one room. As a result no precious inches are lost to walls and the room feels full of light and space. www.mbd.com

